

The plan for this sprint was to complete all user stories first before working on making the frontend more presentable in tasks. Critical path is red and based on our Fibonacci estimations. We had no story or task that impaired or blocked other ones except for the backend refactoring. Thus it was prioritized first and completed early so that no one would be waiting for merging.